

Brian J. Swann, DDS, MPH

Dr. Swann is a graduate of Pacific University with a BS in psychology and conducted his oral health training at the University of California San Francisco. Dr. Swann received a masters in public health from the Harvard/Chan School of Public Health. He presently serves as the Chief of Oral Health for the Cambridge Health Alliance. He also practices clinical dentistry and conducts the Oral Physician Program within the General Practice Residency, a concept that expands primary care into the scope of oral health.

As an Instructor in Patient-Doctor I at the Harvard Medical School, he assisted with introducing oral health into that curriculum. Additionally, Dr. Swann played a major role of bringing the oral health examination into the medical core curriculum which culminated into an Oral Health Day. At the Harvard School of Dental Medicine, he is an Assistant Professor in Oral Health Policy and Epidemiology, and a member of the Dean's Oral Global Health Committee and the Oral Health and Primary Care Committee.

Dr. Swann is involved with outreach projects in Boston, Jamaica, Haiti, and Rwanda. He directs a pipeline project for the Wampanoag Tribe on Martha's Vineyard and Cape Cod. Most recently, he cofounded and now serves as a member of the Massachusetts State Office of Oral Health Advisory Committee. Additionally, he has begun providing dental services for refugee populations in Lebanon and Greece.
